Dear Joshua,

Very many thanks indeed for your letter of July 15th, which straightens out the only points of uneasiness I had over your magnificent article in Science.

The possibility of my coming out to the West coast is a bit too vague at the moment to justify making any plans. I am in fact giving the Durham Lectures in Harvard some time in March, but the acceptance of this lecturership entails (note use of the word "entails") my residing in Harvard for three weeks, and I very much fear that this isn't going to leave me time to visit about the country. If things turn out otherwise, and I do have some spare time, I shall certainly get in touch with you again.

In the meantime, all good wishes,

Yours ever,

Peter
